TIP

Jangjeon Hill

Located next to the Igdidae Coastal Trail, Jangjeon Mountain is a low hill at 225 m above sea level. Its excellent connection to the Coastal Trail allows visitors to climb the mountain at any time during their hiking trip. The mountain's gentle slopes make it easy to climb. Moreover, following the songs of the birds to the Jangjeon Peak brings one to a stunning view over the Igdidae C&T.

Coastal Cliffs Remembering the Patriots

Igidae Cliff

Igidae Cliff is a great place to enjoy the best views of the mountains and the sea, shaped by nature into a breathtaking coastal cliff formation. The most common theory behind the name "Igidae" is the story of the two gisaeng, who threw themselves into the sea with the Japanese commander in their arms during the feast held to celebrate the capitulation of the Suyeongseong Fortress in the Imjin War. The cliff's beauty and value are recognized through the designation of the National Geopark. Moreover, the fresh mountain air, the expansive view of the sea, and the cool sea breeze can surely wipe any stress away.

The Perfect Harmony of the Mountain and the Sea

Igidae Coastal Trail

The 4.7 km long Coastal Trail takes one along the Igidae Cliff like a gallery of rock formations. Following the trail brings one closer to the beating heart of the sea as well. The Coastal Trail is supposed to start at the area near the Igidae The View Apartments, but another good idea is to pass the trail in reverse order, starting from the Oryukdo Sunrise Park on the other side. Alongside the beautiful nature, the trail also brings one to the view of the man-made marvels of the Gwangandaegyo Bridge and the Marine City.

TIP

The fame of Igidae Coastal Trail is not only limited as a site for trekking but also for blackhead seabream fishing. Indeed, Igidae Cliff boasting of fishing poles and the sound of the waves is a showcase of its different but equally charming side.

Igidae Coastal Trail Routes in Detail

Dongsaeangmal Observatory

The route's name means "the end of the mountain to the east" but is also the starting point of the Igidae Coastal Trail and the Haeparang Trail. The end of the rain season in July is characterized by days when the sea fog rises up and envelops Haeundae and Marine City. Thus, this site is an insider's choice for Busan's view at night and the ever-popular Busan Fireworks Festival.

Woman Diver's Shelter

This is the rest area and storage for haenyeo woman divers. It is shaped like a turtle heading toward the sea, with its head being formed by a natural rock formation. Even today, about 10 haenyeo divers live off by harvesting seafoods off the coast.

Suspension Bridge

Five suspension bridges are laid out one after another, with a total length of 127 m. On top of the bridges connecting the coastal cliffs with each other, you can see the blue waves of the sea below. Moreover, the thrill of standing on a shaky bridge is the best part, similar to icing on a cake. The expansive view also seems to open one's heart to the beauty of the area.

Pothole

A long period of erosion by sand or gravel, picked up by the waves, caused the rocks to wear down and form these potholes. The stone wall at the back of the pothole bears the inscription "Igidae [이계도]"

Sea Cave

This cave has been shaped over thousands of years by the waves back when the coastal cliffs were submerged under the sea. When the land rose above the sea level, it was exposed in its present location. As such, this is a great place to experience the mysteries of nature's work.

Igidae Coastal Trail Routes in Detail

Igidae Eoul Madang

This is the place to go for an expansive view of the Gwangandaegyo Bridge, Dongbaekseom Island, and Haeundae. It is also famous as the filming site of <Haeundae>. Thanks to the convenient system of walking trails, it is a great place to take a stroll. Moreover, this staircase is the perfect place for relaxing and catching your breath, perhaps with a snack.

Chima Rockface

The flatness of the rock will remind you of the silhouette of a Korean skirt. It is a popular gathering place for fishers. At this point, you would be so close to the sea, allowing you to dip your hand into the waves. Moreover, it is a great place to sit on a mat and listen to the sound of the waves.

Batgolsae

The breathtaking sight of the tall coastal cliffs and wide wave-cut platforms are common in the East Sea coast because of harsh waves and the comparatively low tidal range. In addition, Batgolsae is located at the junction between the East Sea and the South Sea. It is famous for its several sculptures shaped by the waves.

Nongbawi Rock

The haenyeo divers of Seongsanpo, Jeju, used the rock formations of the Igidae Cliff, Namcheon-dong, and Baengunpo Port as a means of communication. It is also called Bucheobawi Rock (Buddha rock) because it was also used as the site of the prayers offered for the safety of the boats leaving the harbor.

Igidae Nature Park

It is made up of the Eco Marsh, Onyudo Observatory, and the Historic Forest Trail. Most trails are made to be barrier-free, and the area is famous for its cherry blossom during April.

A Guide for Visitors of Nam-gu

Oryukdo Haeparang Trail Tourist Information Center

Located right next to Oryukdo Islets, this site serves the 500,000 visitors of the island as a tourist guide and a welcoming center. The year 2019 saw the addition of a 5G-based VR experience hall, allowing visitors to experience Oryukdo Islets through virtual reality. In addition, the rooftop viewing point offers a view of the Nam-gu to the Busanhangdaegyo Bridge and Yeongdo's Taejongdae Park beyond.

Busan's Symbol, the Pride of Nam-gu Oryukdo Islets

Oryukdo Islets are named because there are six (ryuk) islands to the east and five (do) islands to the west. From the closest island to the land, it is made up of the Bangpaeseom Island, the shield (bangpae) for waves and wind; Solseom Island, which is famous for pine trees; Suriseom Island, where eagles gather; Songgotsseom Island, which is sharp and small like a gimlet; Gulseom Island with the coastal cave; and the Deungdaeseom Island with the lighthouse. As a symbol of the maritime city of Busan, it was designated as the 'Scenic Site 24 of Korea' in 2007. Moreover, it is a protected area for its marine flora and fauna and a beloved site for photographers.

Address 536 (Bangpaeseom Island) - 941 (Deungdaeseom Island), Yongho-dong

A Breathtaking Sight on the Cliff Oryukdo Skywalk

This glass bridge was installed on a coastal cliff 35 m above sea level. When you put on your overshoes and enter the bridge, you would find yourself on top of a 15 m long platform on the air made out of 24 specially treated glass. Moreover, the bridge extends out to the sea like a diving board toward the horizon. On clear days, it is also the best place to see the Tushima Island from a distance.

Meeting the Shining Sun on the Hill Oryukdo Sunrise Park

This expansive hill is the best place to watch the sunrise and sunset in Oryukdo Islets. Walking up the wooden deck from the parking lot, you can witness the view of the Oryukdo Islets and the Skywalk. As it is a hill, the cool sea breeze blows in the area at any point in time. Moreover, springtime brings a yellow tide of canola flowers on the slope and narcissus blooming within the park.

Address 950, Yongho-dong

TIP Oryukdo Quay

For a closer look at Oryukdo Islets, you can head to Oryukdo Island Ferry Quay, where there are two ferries in operation, mostly serving fishers. For tourists, however, the ferry doubles as an excellent way to circle the Oryukdo Islets. Cards are not accepted, so make sure to prepare some cash in advance.

A Living Space of Culture and Art Daeyeon-dong Cultural Alley

The origins of this street hark back to 2004, when architect Choi Yoon-sik bought a house in Daeyeon-dong's sleepy residential district and refashioned it into a music restaurant. In 2007, four nearby houses were added to the now budding cultural complex. It opened to the public in 2008, and since then has been recognized with the "Busandaun Architecture Awards." Today, it contains a small theater, florist shop, wine bar, gallery, live café, and a restaurant. From 2017 onward, it has also hosted the "Alley Architectural Festival," inviting famous figures for invitational lectures.

Pukyong National University Walker House

On July 13, 1950, General Walton Harris Walker, commander of the eighth US army, began to relocate the command post in Daegu to Busan amid ferocious North Korean assault, settling into the National Fisheries University of Busan (currently Pukyong National University) on September 6, 1950. Thus, the Walker House thrust into the spotlight as the center of the ROK-US defense in the Naikdonggang Perimeter. Now, many years after, Walker House still stands as the defender of peace in the youthful, energetic atmosphere of the university campus.

A district designated as a memorial to world peace and the defense of freedom and as the cultural manifestation of the spiritual identity of the UN Memorial Cemetery of Nam-gu, Busan, this district contains several cultural halls, memorials, museums, and cultural institutes centered around the UN Memorial Cemetery.

A One-of-a-Kind Monument to Encourage Peace in the World

UN Memorial Cemetery

Busan's UN Memorial Cemetery, the only one of its kind in the world, commemorates the fallen soldiers of the UN forces (2,297 from 11 countries) during the Korean War. Originally built in 1951, the cemetery was donated permanently to the UN in 1955 and was listed as the Registered Cultural Property 359 of Korea. Its main gate and the memorial hall were designed by Kim Jung-eop, one of the most important figures in modern Korean architecture, in 1955. The fallen soldiers were laid to rest in graves of identical size, regardless of their rank, to commemorate their sacrifices in defending the peace.

TIP Turn Toward Busan

This international memorial ceremony offers a minute of silence to remember the fallen soldiers of the Korean War each year at 11:00, November 11, following the slogan "Moment to Be One, Turn Toward Busan." November 11 is the Armistice Day for World War 1, the Remembrance Day for British Commonwealth countries, and the Veterans Day for the United States. Why not offer a minute of silence for the defenders of peace the next time November 11 comes?

The Past that Must Not Be Forgotten

National Memorial Museum of Forced Mobilization under the Japanese Occupation

This museum was opened in 2015 to examine the subject of forced mobilization during the Japanese Occupation of Korea (1910-1945) and tell the messages of human rights and world peace. Because most of the forced mobilization during the occupation began in Busan, and the people of Gyeongsang Province formed the majority of the victims at 22% of the total, the museum was thus built in Daejeon-dong area of Nam-gu, Busan. Its permanent exhibition shows records and pictures from the forced mobilization, while memorials and environmentally friendly rest areas help create a holistic experience in remembering and experiencing the tragic moments in history.

A Memento of Exploitation

Somak Village

This was the site of the inspection and storage for cows that were seized and sent to Japan during the Japanese Occupation. After the liberation, nearly 200,000 Koreans returned to their homeland through Busan, creating shantytowns fashioned out of livestock pens in the area. The Korean War brought even more displaced refugees from all over Korea to Somak Village. Then, the houses of Somak Village were registered as the Registered Cultural Property 715 of Korea in 2018 as a monument to Korea's modern history.

The Origins of Busan's Famous Wheat Noodles Naeho Naengmyeon

This restaurant is the creator of Busan's signature food—wheat noodles. Originally opened in Heungnam's Naeho Market in October 1919 with the name <Dongchun Myeonok>, the restaurant relocated with the owners as they fled the war to Busan, reopening in Busan's Uam-dong area in 1952 under the name <Naeho Naengmyeon>. Then, the first milmyeon (wheat noodles) was served under the name milnaengmyeon, created with wheat flour from humanitarian aid, when the priest from the nearby Donghyang Catholic Church asked the restaurant's owners to make the noodles for the starving people of the neighborhood. At present, wheat noodles became Busan's most famous food and the centerpiece of Naeho Naengmyeon's menu and is still going strong after 100 years of the restaurant and 4 generations of owners.

Rio de Janeiro in Busan

Donghang Catholic Church

This Catholic church is reminiscent of the Brazilian port city of Rio de Janeiro, down to its own Christ the Redeemer statue and a beautiful view of the sunset and night sky. The church began offering Catholic services in January 1951 from a tent. The church only opened in Uam-dong area on Christmas Day of 1957. It is also a deeply meaningful historic site for its role in serving the war refugees and medical care. The harmony between the red brick church and the lights from the Busanhangsaegyo Bridge in the distance makes the church a highly popular spot at night as well.

The True Busan View at Night

Uam-dong Urban Forest

This urban park is famous for its beautiful city view at night, reminiscent of the film <La La Land>. Village Bus Nam-gu 5 takes one to Nam-gu General Social Welfare Hall, and a 5-min climb brings one to the beautiful view of the city beyond the observation deck in the park. The park is at its best at sunset, where the lights in Busanhangdaeyyo Bridge and the containers in the pier begin to light up one by one. Meanwhile, its small size means that it is a great place to take a short walk as well. As such, you can often find people sitting in the benches around the park, lost in discussion.

Securities Museum

Munhyeon-dong

Korea's foremost securities museum was opened in December 2019 to preserve the paper securities and trace the history of securities trading in Korea. Thus, it fulfills the dual roles of providing a systematic collection, preservation, and research of historical materials related to securities trading, as well as using these materials for exhibitions and educational purposes. Therefore, this integrated cultural space is intended to be an open museum with a special focus on community service.

Munhyeon-dong Gopchang Alley

Munhyeon-dong

Munhyeon-dong's Gopchang Alley was established with the influx of intestine parts from the meat-processing plant and the livestock market in Munhyeon-dong during the Japanese Forced Occupation period. It is a collection of 15 restaurants that specialize in small pork intestines near the Munhyeon Junction, at the entrance to the Jigogal-ro. Small intestines, trimmed of fat, tossed in a spicy marinade and grilled over a charcoal fire, makes for a great drinking food or meal.

Mountains and the Sea, Where Even the Clouds Dwell

Sinseondae Terrace

Yongdang-dong

Sinseondae is a coastal terrace, formed by the erosion of the waves on volcanic rock. Its name came from its spectacular view, which even the mountain spirits are believed to have appreciated. In October 1757, a British survey vessel ran around in this area for eight days. Then, a commemorative monument was erected to remember the first contact between Korea and Britain. It was assigned as the Designated Cultural Property 62 of Busan Metropolitan City in 1972. The peak of the mountain offers a view of the Busanhang Port, Yeongdo, Jodo Island, and Onyudo Islets.

The Spirit of General Choi Young Lives On

Muminsa Temple

Gamman 0945

This shrine is dedicated to Choi Young, a Goryeo-era general, who was a stalwart defender of Goryeo during the last days of the dynasty, beset by weakening control and rapid changes in East Asian political scene. He was also known for his unwavering loyalty to the kingdom, up until his death at the hands of Yi Seong-gye, the founder of Joseon. Because of these deeds, Choi Young was venerated as the guardian deity of Gamman-dong and Joseon's Gyeongsang Jwaesyeong naval command. Even today, the people of Gamman-dong put together a communal fund to host the ceremony for the general in the shrine.
